Top babe Myleene to make millions

■ from PETER DYKE in Oz

MYLEENE Klass has a Queen-sized hangover this morning ... after celebrating becoming telly's hottest new babe. She is set to rake in £3million after coming second to Busted's Matt Willis in I'm A Celebrity. Jason Donovan was third.

Curvy Myleene, 28, is the undisputed "Queen of the Jungle". Now she is set her in a deal that could be worth £1m – and insiders claim she is being lined-up to host her own prime-time entertainment show.

The squeaky-clean beauty – whose revealing showers in the jungle kept male fans gripped – will also boost her income from commercials, modelling, music and an expected autobiography.

A showbiz source revealed last night: "Myleene's shown millions of viewers what an honest, lovely, down-to-earth girl she is.

"And, most importantly, she also looks great. Without doubt she has become the hottest babe in the UK right now – she's exactly what television executives and advertisers are looking for.

"Three weeks in the outback have totally changed her career.

"Her music career will also enjoy a big boost – there's already talk of an album and she might now be able to re-launch her pop career with record labels willing to hire the best songwriters around for her.

"Myleene really is a class act. She's both beautiful and talented. A priceless combination."

Myleene, who delayed her wedding to Graham Quinn, 30, to go into the jungle, can also expect a hefty fee from an exclusive magazine deal when they marry.

Yet, incredibly, she came close to snubbing the chance to go onto the show – for a THIRD time.

Pals claim Myleene didn't finally make her mind up to go to Oz until the last minute.

The eldest daughter of a Filipina mother and an Austrian father, Myleene grew up in Norfolk and trained as a pianist at the Royal Academy of Music – after turning down a place at Cambridge.

Michael Jackson has been glued to TV's I'm A Celebrity for the past three weeks – because he thinks Myleene Klass is an absolute THRILLER.

The king of pop originally tuned in to watch the show to see how his best pal David Gest was coping, but fell for sexy Myleene.

JASON TO BE
XMAS No 1FAB THREE:
The trio of finalists in camp
yesterday

■ by MARK JEFFERIES

JUNGLE hit Jason Donovan is going straight back to the top of the charts – after grabbing third place on I'm A Celebrity.

The 38-year-old is set to use his exposure on the reality series to kick-start his showbiz career.

And after winning over millions of new fans he is expected to bring out an album as well as being offered the chance to resume his career in musicals in London's West End.

A source close to Jason said: "He is delighted that he got to the end of I'm A Celebrity. All the finalists are going to see a boost for their career and Jason is planning to make the most of it.

"The offers are already flooding in."

With a Greatest Hits album already out, Jason is expected to rush out a single as well as playing some live UK dates.

He will then begin to work on new material for a new album in 2007.

Last night William Hill spokesman Rupert Adams said: "Jason now has to be a contender for the Christmas number one as Peter Andre managed a number one after leaving the jungle."

Hunk

He is now 20-1 to be Christmas number one and just 33-1 to perform a duet with fellow finalist Myleene Klass, 28, that makes it to the top of the charts.

Jason's highlights in the camp included becoming best pals with David Gest, 53, blubbing after getting a letter from his family and having a bug crawl up his backside during a Bush Tucker Trial.

He said: "It's been an amazing experience and I have loved my time in the jungle."

Meanwhile, ex-Busted star Matt Willis, 23, had to munch on a croc's willy and a kangaroo's bum on the final day.

The pop hunk sat before a table of Aussie "delicacies" for his last-ever challenge having made it to the final.

Matt, Jason and Myleene were all given a task to complete to win a three-course slap-up last supper.

Matt managed to eat a host of horrible critters to complete the trial.

Jason had to face a trial called Fill Your Face and wore a glass helmet as TV bosses poured cockroaches, rhino beetles, spiders and crickets inside.

But he toughed it out to win all the stars.

And Myleene went in for the Scare-E-Ok challenge. She stood in a recording booth and had to sing five songs while producers doused her with bugs.

But she managed to warble her way to win her stars.

The former heart-throb, 38, who was bookies' fave to win, lost out to singers Myleene Klass, 28, and Matt Willis, 23.

Jason smiled ruefully as funnymen Ant and Dec, both 31, revealed the viewers had voted him out.

Sultry Myleene said: "You done well." Matt

"It was great to be at one with nature – notwithstanding the 200 cameras.

"For my kids it's a opportunity for them to see their dad do something great."

Thighs 'n lows

HOT SPOT:
Phina's pins were one of the highs of the showPictures:
ITV/REX FEATURES

THIS year's show has brought its fair share of ups and downs.

And more than nine million viewers have tuned in every night.

But here are the Daily Star's pick of the highs and lows.

The HIGHS were: David Gest turning his public image around.

He went into the show as an "odd-ball freak" but had the camp in awe as he told his stories of dinner with the Jackson Five.

Mylene's love of the showers. She notched up a total of 40 soapy washes in the specially-built waterfall in the first 12 days. Her splashing around helped her win votes.

Dean Gaffney's Bush Tucker Trials. He caused some hilarious scenes with his efforts. He looked scared when he was sealed in a cave-like tomb full of cockroaches, rats, ants, spiders and toads amid slime and cobwebs.

At first he muttered: "Don't open your eyes, Dean", and soon he was screaming: "Slimy, slimy, horrible, horrible, slimy slime."

David and Toby's rap. This was a highpoint or lowpoint depending on your taste in music. But we thought it was so cringeworthy and bad that it was great.

Group getting letters from home. The celebrities were rewarded for retrieving a Celebrity Chest with written messages from home and ended up blubbing.

David Gest's came from Jacko's brother Tito and Fifties screen siren Jane Russell.

Jason Donovan sobbed as he was shown a picture of his partner Angela and two children, Gemma and Zac.

Mylene also burst into tears when she got a message from her parents,

■ by MARK JEFFERIES

Magdalena and Oscar, and fiancé Graham.

And Phina Oruche's letter from friend Frances reassured her that everyone was thinking about her back home in Liverpool.

And then there were the LOWS. Scott wimping out of disco-dancing. Hosts Ant and Dec were dumbstruck when Scott shouted "I'm a Celebrity... Get Me Out of Here" after just one song.

Lauren fainting and needing oxygen. The half sister of Cherie Blair needed serious medical treatment after a Bush Tucker Trial.

She blacked out after plunging 100ft during a bungee jump to win meals for camp.

Phina biting Scott during celeb chest.

During the split camp the boys and girls had to fight each other to win food and treats.

But Phina took the competition way too seriously and sunk her teeth into Scott.

Afterwards Phina said: "He fought by any means necessary and engaged with a cobra."

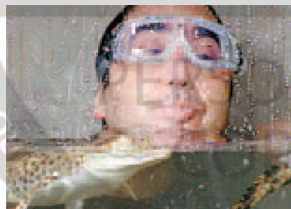

But Scott hit back, hissing: "I went on to the show expecting to get bitten by animals in the jungle, but not by one of the human contestants."

Jan's moaning and self-importance. Former newsreader Jan was a great contestant but she loved being in the headlines.

Jan couldn't help talking about her triumphs in the Bush Tucker Trials again and again. And again.

The other campers begged her to shut up and were secretly pleased to see the back of her when she left.

She even claimed she might strip off for an X-rated mag.

Jungle babe talks
EXCLUSIVELY to

■ from PETER DYKE in Oz
CURVY Mylene Klass revealed last night that going without sex was tougher than any Bush-tucker Trial.

After leaving the jungle she said she couldn't wait to hop between the sheets with her hunky fiancé Graham Quinn.

She purred: "Forget snakes and spiders, going without sex was the hardest thing."

"In fact, I've been thinking about it ever since I went in. I'm looking forward to jumping in bed with my man more than anything."

"Usually there's nothing I like more than a lovely kiss and a cuddle."

"But being in that camp for so long has made me all hot and bothered. I had to take loads of showers to cool my lust. Graham had better watch out!"

Bikini

Blokes were glued to their screens whenever the 28-year-old ex-Hear'Say babe showered in her bikini.

But Mylene said: "I used to hate my body. I was always too fat or too thin."

"A few years ago I lost loads of weight and got called 'Lollipop Head'. My boobs shrank from a D cup to a B cup. But I'd never get skinny again now, no way. I've got Austrian heritage on my father's side, so I'm always going to have the boobs and the hips. I'm proud of them."

"I think women should champion their assets. We're all far more attractive with curves. I love my boobs too much."

Mylene added: "Graham never commented on my weight when I was bigger."

But when I got too skinny he used to call me Boney M and Bambi. He hated it."

"He said my boobs had gone – and my bum. I feel so much sexier now."

Graham, 30, proposed to her in Rome earlier this year and she hopes to get wed as soon as possible.

She said: "We were supposed to be getting married last month but Graham said I should take the opportunity to go to Australia. So now I've got a wedding to plan.

"I've a friend who'll design my dress so we just need to find a venue."

"I always said I wanted to get married in a castle in Ireland – because I want Graham to be in a kilt."

Tattoo

"I want all the men in kilts. But now I'm out here I'm thinking I'd love to get married in the jungle."

But at least there's one less thing to worry about – ex-Westlife and Hear'Say bodyguard Graham won't be needing a wedding ring.

"He's getting a tattoo instead," said Mylene. "I'm drawing it. I love that idea – I love a bad boy." Mylene's real reason for braving the jungle was to resurrect her music career – and meet her hero Jason Donovan.

She said: "He was my idol when I was young. I had the biggest crush on him. He didn't disappoint."

"In fact, everyone was brilliant. I loved the whole experience."

"Now I'd like to sing with the lead singer of Maroon 5. And I'd love to do a single for Childline."

"And Take That said to me earlier this year that I could be their fifth member, the new Lulu. So boys, if the offer's still there..."

Mylene, if they've been watching you in the jungle, we're pretty sure it will be.

DIAL A PASSPORT

WAY IN: Shahida shows off her fakes

'I bought 20 of them in 24 hrs'

FAKE passports are now so easy to get hold of that a TV reporter bought 20.

The forged documents – widely used by illegal immigrants to enter Britain – were all from different EU countries.

And last night the Home Office said it is urgently looking into evidence unearthed by the BBC's Panorama programme.

Shahida Tula-ganova managed to enter the UK twice using fakes. Counterfeit

by GARY NICKS

experts told her their papers were a guaranteed ticket to a new life in the UK. And when she asked one underworld dealer if his fake papers had worked, he replied: "There were no failures."

In fact, he was so confident that he was happy to skip payment until Shahida successfully entered Britain.

Slick

Another dealer even offered an insurance policy, telling her: "If by bad luck you do get caught your next passport is on us."

The faked passports are like gold dust because they not only allow the holder access to the UK but also to live and work here indefinitely.

It means they can apply for benefits, bank accounts and free health care.

The Panorama programme says some dealers are now so slick that they offer a range of fakes. Shahida was offered counterfeit copies of passports that were delivered within 24 hours.

Some were stolen and had her photo inserted, or she could opt for genuine passports which lookalikes had applied for, using Shahida's photo.

One dealer told her: "We find somebody who looks like you. They go to the passport office and apply for a passport in their name. They don't even have to sign it."

On her first trip into the country, every page of her fake Latvian passport was scrutinised by UK passport control and she was interviewed by police. But officials still failed to notice it was a fake.

On her second attempt Shahida travelled on Eurostar using a stolen Estonian passport.

● The programme – My Fake Passports and Me – will be broadcast on BBC1 at 9pm on Monday.

She picked the orphan-feeding project Mary's Meals to receive £100 Mr Cameron saves by not buying House of Commons cards.

INJURED: Harry Smart

Soccer kids in Tube horror

by LIZZIE CATT

A YOUNG architect died and a teenage football star was critically injured after falling in front of a Tube train.

Queen's Park Rangers youth team player Harry Smart, 17, was play-fighting with teammates at London's Earls Court Tube station when he tumbled into a 25-year-old commuter.

The pair fell on the tracks and into the path of an oncoming train.

The dead man was named yesterday as Vietnamese student Tu Quang Hoang Vu.

Smart suffered a fractured skull and a

STABBED: Pal Kiyan

punctured artery in his leg by the incident nine days ago.

He is now fighting for his life in hospital.

Mr Vu, who came to the UK to study for a master's degree, was last night described as an "exceptional" young architect with "glowing credentials".

Relatives said he came to London to "secure a future for himself" and his family at home.

The tragedy is the second to strike the QPR youth team.

The players involved in the accident were all friends and team-mates of murdered student Kiyan Prince, 15, who was stabbed to death outside a school six months ago.

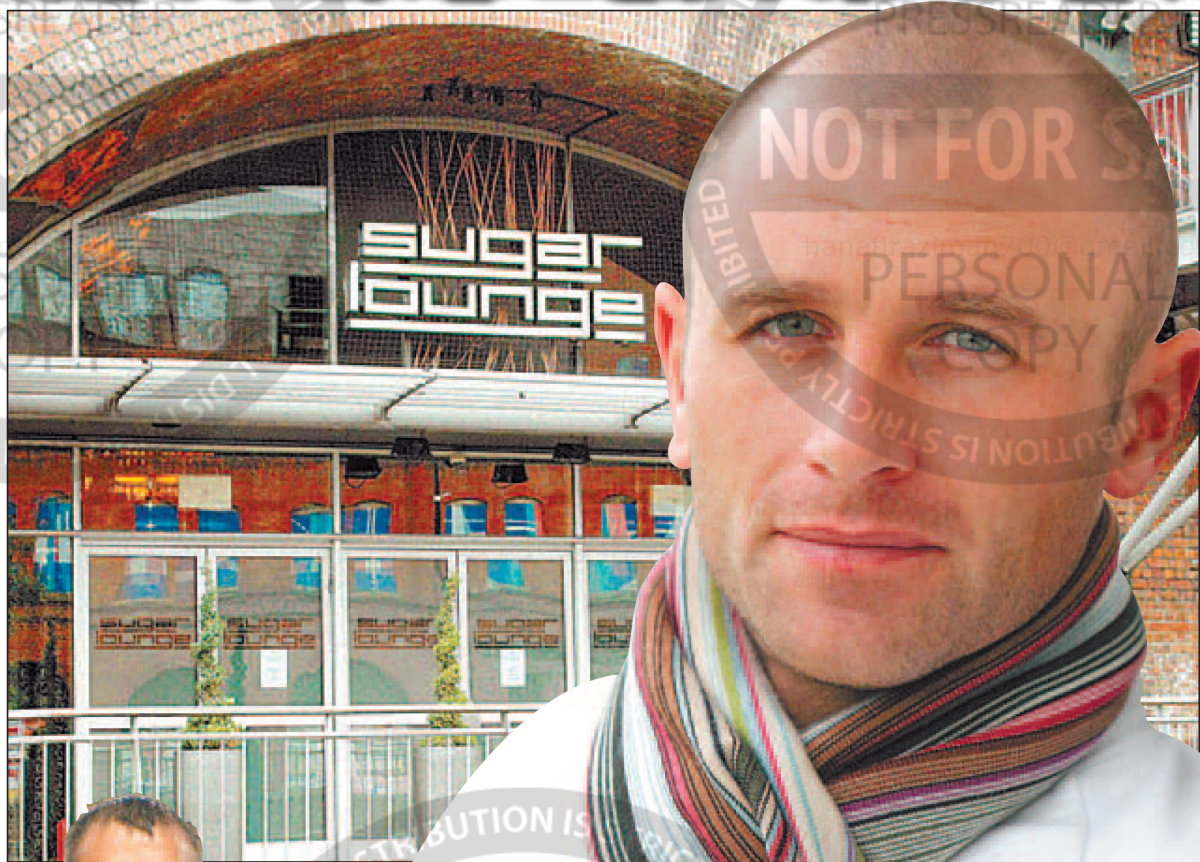

Smart was spokesman for the youth team at his funeral.

Police believe he was on a friend's shoulders when he fell on Mr Vu.

Three QPR players, two aged 16 and one 17, have been arrested and released on bail.

Police say they are treating the death as "suspicious".

FOOTIE ACE RON KNIFED 7 TIMES BY LOVE RIVAL

Stabbed in queue for drinks

FOOTBALL star Ronnie Wallwork has been stabbed by a man besotted with his girlfriend.

The 28-year-old West Bromwich Albion defender was knifed in the back, stomach and hand as he queued for a drink in a trendy nightclub.

Last night the £10,000-a-week ex-Manchester United star was described as "stable" in hospital. Despite seven stab wounds doctors said his life was not in danger.

A massive manhunt is underway for the knifeman, who waited for the star at Manchester's Sugar Lounge.

Wallwork - currently on loan at Championship club Barnsley - was attending a private birthday party with his girlfriend. Detectives believe the attacker was a former boyfriend of the player's new love. Wallwork was attacked as he queued at the bar at 11.30pm on Thursday.

by JERRY LAWTON

A worker at a nearby bar said: "All hell broke loose. The guy struck without warning and just suddenly began knifing Ronnie."

"There was blood everywhere and loads of people were screaming. It's a miracle he survived."

Devoted

Sugar Lounge owner John Rennie - whose bar is a favourite of Robbie Williams, 32, and Kylie Minogue, 38 - said: "People were enjoying themselves with no problems."

"Ronnie Wallwork turned up at the party with his girlfriend and walked upstairs to the function."

"As soon as he got into the room this man walked over. There was no argument or cross words - he just stabbed him and ran out of the back door."

Last night Wallwork's dad Ron and mum Elaine were at his bedside.

A neighbour said: "No-one knows why anyone would do this to Ronnie. He's a lovely guy devoted to his family and doesn't cause trouble."

A pal of Wallwork's told the Daily Star: "Ronnie and his girlfriend have not been going out for very long, but this guy used to see her."

Wallwork, who lives in Walsall, West Midlands, was part of the same United youth team as stars David Beckham, 31, and Paul Scholes, 32.

Greater Manchester Police said: "Detectives believe this was not a random attack and are making further inquiries to trace the offender."

Hamster horror to be shown

by MAZ PARTASIDES

TELLY bosses will show the horrific 300mph crash that left Top Gear host Richard Hammond fighting for his life.

Car-crazy Richard suffered brain injuries and spent weeks in hospital after the dragster smash earlier this year.

But now the star has given producers the go-ahead to show the terrifying footage on the box.

Richard, 36, gave the thumbs-up after watching the film himself for the first time. It will be shown in January in a new Top Gear series.

A telly source said: "It's taken him a while but he's finally seen the footage. He put it off for a bit until things started to get back to normal. But now he's had a look at it he doesn't think there's a problem."

"No one wanted to make a decision without Richard of course - it's all down to him."

Richard's high-speed crash happened during filming for the hit BBC2 show at Evington Air Field, near York, in September.

He was driving a jet-powered Vampire dragster when it veered off the track and flipped several times. Doctors originally feared he would suffer permanent damage, but the star made an amazing recovery.

Carol's way out of step

THE writing could be on the wall for golden girl Carol Smillie tonight.

A BBC poll shows 48.2% of Strictly Come Dancing fans want to boot out her and pro partner Matthew Cutler, 33.

Mum-of-three Carol, 44, who is bookies' favourite to go despite being dubbed the "dark horse" of the contest, hit rock bottom in the poll by the show's official website - which attracted nearly 13,000 votes.

Former Spice Girl Emma Bunton, 30, and her partner Darren Bennett, 29, were next choice to go with 19.2% of fans calling for their exit.

Banished

Matt Dawson, 34, and his Russian partner Lilia Kopylova, 27, were the get-rid choice for 16.5% of dance fans.

The two favourites - EastEnders Louisa Lytton, 17, and cricketer Mark Ramprakash, 37, - seem totally safe.

Just 9.7% want to see Louisa banished and a tiny 6.4% want to say adieu to Mark.

But the website stresses: "The figures do not purport to represent public opinion as a whole on this issue."

VOTE FOR LEONA

Spurned lover's T-shirt crusade to spite ex Ben

THE jilted girlfriend of X Factor's Ben Mills has started a voting campaign around his home town - for his singing rival Leona Lewis.

Anna Barratt is furious with the husky-voiced star after being ordered to cough up more than £1,000 to settle their court battle earlier this week.

Now the bitter babe wants to put the boot into his bid to win the hit series and has printed hundreds of Vote Leona T-shirts.

Anna is handing them out for free around Whitstable in Kent to drive the message home about her "fame-hungry" ex.

Split

Anna told the Daily Star: "I don't want him to win. I've never voted for him."

"I vote for Leona every week. I'm getting the T-shirts printed in different colours to wear around town. She's fantastic and deserves it."

Anna told how she is still heart-broken after splitting up with romance rocker Ben earlier this year, only to discover he had started dating her best friend Siobhan Hewlett, 24.

But she is getting over him by praying he loses. She said: "I watch him every week. The first few weeks I cried every time I saw him and my family told me to stop torturing myself. But he was in the bottom two last week, which was quite funny."

"He's just hungry for fame and sex and he'll do whatever he wants to feed his addiction."

"Leona's the real talent. She's humble and has never complained."

Magistrates told Anna, 28, to pay Ben, 26, £1,000 in damages last Monday after she admitted she had stuffed chunks of tuna into his prized piano.

And the spurned lover

■ by MAZ PARTISIDES

also confessed to pouring bleach over his clothes and filling his front-door lock with glue in June after she discovered he was dating Siobhan.

Anna was also given a 12-month conditional discharge at Canterbury Magistrates' Court and told to pay Siobhan £50 after she punched her when they ended up in a fight in September.

The pair came to blows at a pub where Ben was making one of his last performances before the finals.

Ben had originally asked for £4,500 to cover the cost of the damage before the figure was dropped to £1,000.

Sick

But his furious ex is still miffed that she has to fork out any cash.

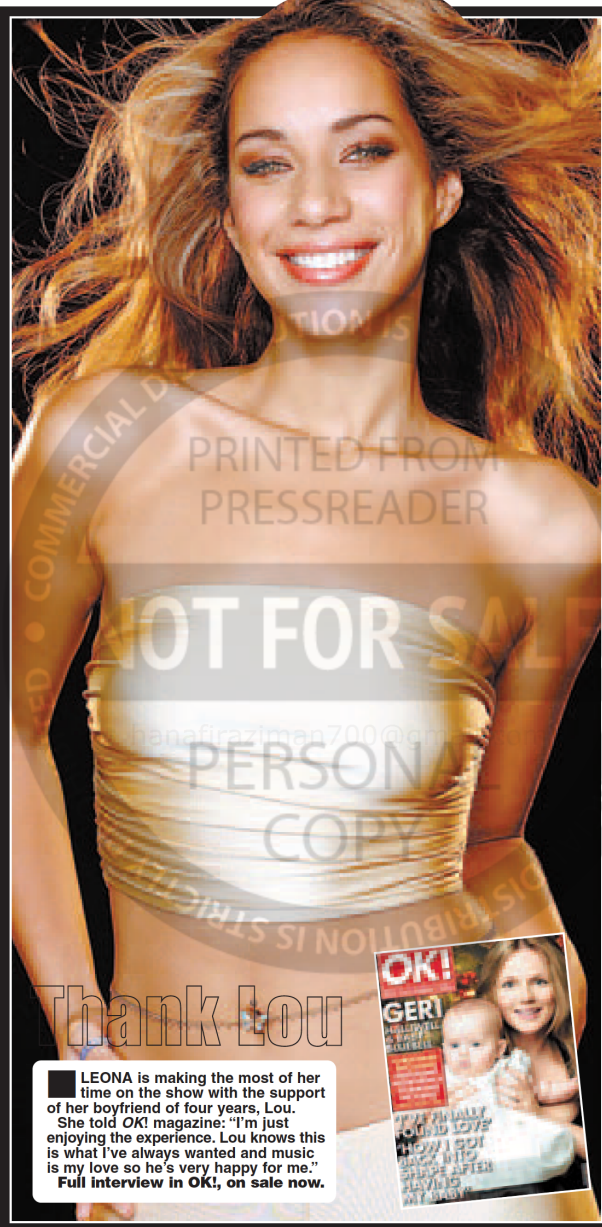

She said: "He dumped me and now I have to pay. It seems a bit sick, especially as he's about to make a load of money."

Ben, who has now split from Siobhan, has insisted he never dated both women at the same time.

He is due to sing in tonight's quarter-final against Leona, 21, Ray Quinn, 18, and the MacDonald Brothers, 20.

● The X Factor is on ITV1 tonight at 6.40pm and 9pm.

marrianna.partisides@dailystar.co.uk

Thank Lou

LEONA is making the most of her time on the show with the support of her boyfriend of four years, Lou. She told OK! magazine: "I'm just enjoying the experience. Lou knows this is what I've always wanted and music is my love so he's very happy for me." Full interview in OK!, on sale now.

Boys take a big risk

■ TWO of the X Factor stars are skating on thin ice tonight - trying to sing risky songs they hope will keep them in the competition.

Ben Mills - in the bottom two last week - has been practising an a cappella version of Queen's Somebody To Love, which has never been done before. Ben said: "I am going well outside my comfort zone for this."

■ "I am taking a risk but I need to if I want to stay in the competition."

Scouse youngster Ray, the bookies' favourite to go, will try to sing Sinatra's classic, My Way.

A show insider said: "He has got through recently partly thanks to his dance moves."

■ "But this week he will sing without the swing. It's a big ask to try to copy Sinatra."

Meanwhile Leona

■ by MARK JEFFERIES

Lewis is doing Could It Be Magic and Without You and The MacDonald Brothers will belt out Can't Smile Without You and Shang A Lang.

■ All had a break in their schedules and went ice skating.

And one of the acts will hit the skids tonight because the vote is purely down to the public - with no judges' "saving" votes.

So the one with the lowest vote leaves the other three for the final.

Gunners' ground link to spy murder

■ EXCLUSIVE by IAIN BURCHELL
ARSENAL'S football stadium was last night feared to be contaminated with the radioactive poison that killed Russian spy Alexander Litvinenko.

The shocking twist came as it was also revealed the Italian academic who met Litvinenko on the day he fell ill has also tested positive for deadly polonium 210.

Mario Scaramella, who Litvinenko feared had poisoned him, now faces a desperate fight for survival after being rushed to hospital.

Meanwhile, executive boxes at the new 60,000-seater Emirates Stadium were closed off yesterday as specialists searched for traces of radiation.

The drama came as The Gunners prepare to host one of their biggest matches of the season against fierce north London rivals Tottenham in front of a sell-out crowd today.

A group of Russian men who police believe could hold the key to

VICTIMS: Scaramella, inset, has same poison that killed Litvinenko ium said yesterday: "The police are checking out executive boxes. We have been told it is in connection with the Litvinenko case." Last night Arsenal declined to comment. Scaramella, 38, a long-term contact of Litvinenko, tested positive for a "significant quantity" of polonium 210 one month after meeting him.

Health

The Health Protection Agency refused to name the victim as Scaramella but said the amount of radiation in his body was "likely to be of concern for their immediate health" - though he is not thought to be suffering the same symptoms as Litvinenko. He is to undergo further hospital tests.

Yesterday Mr Litvinenko's wife Marina, 44 - who was in close contact with him during his illness - tested positive for polonium 210 after providing a urine sample. And a hotel in Sussex where Mr Scaramella stayed was evacuated for tests last night.

Three pathologists in protective radiation suits carried out a post-mortem on Litvinenko yesterday but the results may not be available for several days.

Sources close to the investigation say detectives have made a series of vital breakthroughs:

● Litvinenko's assassins were bungling amateurs who even dropped the radioactive poison used to kill him.

● Scientists have already identified the nuclear plant which made the polonium 210.

● The evidence points to a plot involving rogue KGB agents.

ian.burchell@dailystar.co.uk

Police are checking out boxes

Litvinenko's mysterious death attended Arsenal's Champions League match with CSKA Moscow on the day he fell ill.

They included the businessmen who met the KGB defector at a London hotel earlier that day.

At least one of them - ex-KGB spy Andrei Lugovoy - is understood to be still anxiously awaiting the results of tests to see if he has been contaminated.

Best a banker

EVERY one of a million £5 notes issued to mark the first anniversary of George Best's death have been snapped up.

The notes went on sale at Ulster Bank branches across Northern Ireland at the start of the week.

The bank said yesterday that all stocks of the notes featuring legend Best, who was 59, had now sold out. They featured him in his Manchester United and Northern Ireland kits.

A wine mess

AN off-licence chain was today braced for a booze rush after a 40% discount voucher raced round the country via e-mail.

Thresher Group e-mailed the coupon to a limited number of suppliers earlier this week.

But the voucher for wine and champagne was quickly passed to millions of members of the public.

Thresher Group's PR manager Dirk Kind said: "It has just absolutely snowballed."

QUICKIE..

WE are strong supporters of retail therapy to perk you up when you're in the dumps.

But Nick Lachey, 33, has taken it to a new level after a row with ex-wife Jessica Simpson, 26.

He marched out of his pad with his credit card aloft and bought a baseball team.

He explained: "Sport for me, other than what I do for a living, is truly my passion. And baseball has always been something that is a part of my life. It cheers me."

We feel a bit down, so we're off to buy David Beckham.

QUICKIE..

THE Courtney Love-shaped hole in Blighty is about to be filled by the rock icon.

Lock up your comedians, because the blonde legend is thinking of buying Bob Hoskins' house and moving permanently.

Love, 42, said: "I have been looking at homes in London and am very interested in Bob Hoskins' house."

"I might be putting in an offer as I want to live here."

CATHERINE Tate was more than a bit bovvered when her idol George Michael shouted out to her onstage at his Earls Court gig.

The comedy redhead almost fainted when the singer waxed lyrical about her at his 25 Live performance.

And Catherine, 38, admitted she's tempted to buy tickets to all of his future gigs now.

So she's tied an extra date has been added to 43-year-old George's Wembley Arena shows later this month.

BIRTHDAY GIRL: Brit plans mock wedding

PARIS AND BRIT TO MARRY!

OOPS. Britney Spears is doing it again and getting hitched - this time to her partner-in-crime Paris Hilton.

But don't fear, the marriage will be about as meaningful as the pop tart's nuptials to Kevin Federline, 28.

That's because the gruesome twosome are holding a mock wedding for Britney's 25th birthday party at Tinseltown's chavtastic Hyde nightclub.

They will re-enact the moment when Britney, Madonna, 48, and Christina Aguilera, 25, donned bridal frocks and got sapphic at the 2003 MTV Awards.

Paris, 25, and her eager apprentice will arrive at the venue in a horse-drawn carriage, and their trannie pal Kiki LaFay will be waiting to join them in unholy matrimony.

In a giant middle finger to her estranged husband K-Fed, Brit's comedy vows include the lines: "We don't need men to take away our pay cheques and self-respect" and "Love means never having to say you have a headache."

Fruity

Our source said: "They have been inseparable since Brit's split. So their chums have started calling Paris her new husband. Paris has even been playing daddy with Britney's kids."

The birthday bash is a celebration of their new friendship and Brit's impending divorce. They share everything."

That includes men, after Britney was spotted holding hands with Paris's ex, oil heir Brandon Davis, 25.

Brit got so fruity with Brandon and other guys at LA's Area club, it might not be long before another real wedding.

Paris's eagerness to donate a fella might have something to do with her rekindled romance with 21-year-old minted Greek, Stavros Niarchos.

As she marched towards snappers with shuttlebug magnet Nicole Richie, 25, in tow, she sported a king-size piece of bling featuring pics of her and Stavros.

Something tells us Brit and Paris will make the perfect married couple.

HUSH HUSH

WHICH rock chick is only off the booze because it stings her trout pout? The plastic punk bragged she's given up alcohol as it's poison. But it's not as bad as the collagen she's had put in her lips. The allergic reaction she suffered has made it impossible for her to have a cocktail. So she's trying to get her pals off the booze until her lips heal.

CATCH 22 FOR CAM

TERRIFYINGLY competitive Cameron Diaz has a room at her house full of the wedding bouquets she has caught.

That would be the cue for most men to scarper. But Cameron's boy toy Justin Timberlake, 25, has stuck with her for four years despite her weird obsession, because she refuses to get hitched.

Cam, 34, explained: "The right place at the right time. Ever heard of that, ladies? It's like a sport to me."

"I don't care. I don't want to get married. I just want to catch the bouquet, because I have a collection of bouquets. They're kind of in my ego catalogue, 22 bouquets."

"You know the answer to the question of getting married. I don't want to do it." We suspect she's more afraid of throwing a bouquet away.

HAVE YOU GOT SOME JUICY GOSSIP FOR US?

Lohan feels the eat

LINDSAY
Lohan's nosh-up at The Ivy was almost as short as her skirt.

The twiglet, 20, marched into the LA celebrity hotspot and ordered her dish of designer dust. But after one bite she said she was full and asked her team to take her home.

Our man with the doggy-bag said: "We felt so sorry for her entourage. They were just tucking in when she ordered them to take her back."

They should make her eat a large slice of humble pie.

■ GUSSET-flashing is all the rage in celebville but we hoped it would be reserved for the less-refined Yankee stars. So it was with great sadness that we cast our eyes on this pic of loveable ladies Amy Nuttall, 24, and Samantha Janus, 34. The pair left London's Soho Hotel and decided to treat our unwitting shuttlebug to an impromptu biology lesson. Fortunately, they hadn't been swayed by the current trend of invisible underwear...

IF Janet Jackson's "wardrobe malfunction" wasn't enough to kill off your mojo, her recent actions will.

The saucy fruitloop, now 40, admits she frequently gets caught enjoying public grown-up cuddles with her fella - music producer Jermaine Dupri, 34.

And she has got so frisky in her old age that she will agree to do whatever X-rated act her man wants - anywhere.

She said: "When they ask, you give them what they want. Sometimes you get caught. But that's part of the fun."

"Sexually, we 40-year-olds are in our prime - with way more sexual experience."

SPOTTED

IN London: Martin Sheen overpowering guests with his aftershave at Cafe DeParis; Jessie Wallace telling mucky jokes outside Koko, Camden; Frank Lampard hailing a cab on Dean Street; Martine McCutcheon filling her face at The Ivy; Paul McCartney giving thumbs up at Locanda Locatelli restaurant.

IT'S thirsty work being a WAG - just ask Abbey Clancy.

According to soccer spouse etiquette, each girl must make a pilgrimage to Liverpool's chav-tastic shopping mecca Cricket every day. So Peter Crouch's lady, 19, spent the morning stocking up on velour track-suits. But Crouchie, 25, ignored her phone calls and waited in his car. An insider said: "He saw all the stuff she wanted to buy and stayed away." She certainly doesn't look very Abbey.

Tot was safe in her own bath in her own house...but fiend was lurking

SNATCH MANIAC CAGED FOR LIFE

by GARY NICKS

A CHILD molester who snatched a six-year-old girl from her bath and raped her was caged for life yesterday.

Sex beast Peter Voisey, 35, faces a minimum of 10 years behind bars – but may never be released.

He bundled the terrified tot into his car after sneaking into her North Tyneside home.

He sped off in his Vauxhall Astra van and subjected the girl to two horrific sex assaults before dumping her naked and bleeding in a freezing alley near her home.

She was found when a neighbour heard her whimpering for help.

Judge David Hodson jailed Voisey for life after a jury convicted him at Newcastle Crown Court.

He said: "I am in no doubt whatsoever that you are a dangerous predatory male who poses a serious risk. This is a most grave offence of kidnapping.

Trauma

"This was a six-year-old girl being removed from her own bath in her own home and taken out into a cold night for the purposes of your sexual gratification.

"You will only be released into the community when the parole board considers it safe for you to be released – it may be that you will never be released."

The court heard Voisey, of Blyth, Northumberland, was a registered sex offender at the time of the attack on December 27 last year.

He was jailed for abusing a 12-year-old girl at a leisure centre in Cheshire in 2001.

The judge said his latest victim –

MONSTER: Voisey, right, and the bath he took the girl from

He said: "Who knows what the long-term effects will be?"

Her mum said in a statement that her daughter was not coping well as Christmas approaches. The three-week trial heard how the girl was happily playing with her toys in the bath at about 6.30pm.

Her mum panicked and dialled 999 when she saw her daughter had gone.

As Voisey was led away, he shouted to Detective Chief Inspector Jim Napier, who led the investigation: "Napier, You know I am innocent."

The girl's family yesterday issued a statement saying: "We are very glad it's all over and happy that Voisey won't be released until he is no longer a danger."

DCI Napier said: "He was a registered sex offender.

"That is about reducing risk, not eliminating risk."

EVERY WEDNESDAY AND SATURDAY

What a shower!

AN open letter to the winner of this year's I'm A Celebrity Get Me Out Of Here. Delete where applicable:

Dear Jason/Matt/Mylene,

Congratulations on your well-deserved win. I have backed you in my column since the moment you first bungeed/canoed/showered in there.

I especially loved the challenge when you went in the rolling ball/rescued Malandra/had a shower.

The other thing I loved about you was, no matter how tough things got in there, you always had a great sense of humour/a lovely smile/a shower.

The fact is, I have been a fan of yours since I first saw you in Neighbours/Busted/the shower.

To be honest, I think you might want to think about returning to Neighbours/Busted/the shower one day - perhaps for some kind of stage show or DVD special.

I didn't like EVERYTHING you did.

Oh no. I'm not one of those fawning sycophants desperate to curry favour with the hottest reality TV show star in the country.

I have to admit that I was a bit disappointed when you sang/sang/got out of the shower.

There was no need for that. Was it something your agent recommended?

But your personality shone through and, having seen the real you, I'm willing to forgive you for the duet with Kylie/not keeping Busted together/putting on clothes now and again.

YOU'RE SHEER KLASS

I know that times were hard in there and it was great that you weren't afraid to show the real you, even if it meant you looked wet/wet/wet.

I'm sure you will be inundated with offers and I wish you the best of luck with your next move in acting/singing/showering or singing/acting/showering.

No doubt I'll see you in OK! in NME on Page 3 soon.

Remember how much I supported you and, if we ever meet up when you get back to Britain, I'd love to buy you a drink/pint/bathroom.

Best wishes,
Dominik Diamond
PS: I still can't believe you beat David Gest.

BEWARE TAX CON AHEAD

IDON'T know what the big kerfuffle is over motorists being asked to pay to drive on the roads. We've had to do it for years. It's called petrol. The Government and big business rape drivers' pockets in exchange for the stuff because they know that without the stuff we CAN'T drive on the roads.

In that way it's more insidious than a tax. It's blackmail, in effect. So when they say they'll start adding more road tolls then I'm not angry, upset or surprised. I'm bored.

Bored with a Government that takes its own mistakes (in this case a complete inability to come up with an imaginative, intelligent plan to improve this country's transport system) and demands we bail it out of the problem by paying it more money.

It's like giving a plumber £100 to fix a leaky pipe. Then he comes back later to say that he's actually put two more leaks in it but he'll now fix all three if you give him a grand. The thinking is that road tolls will mean fewer people travelling on roads because it will cost money.

But they'll still HAVE to travel somehow. The Government thinks they'll use trains.

But rail travel is so expensive, especially when you're travelling with kids, that it would have to be huge bloody toll to make people swap the car for that.

RESearch out this week has shown that Bristol is the cheapest place in the UK to have a night out.

They say it's one third of the cost of doing the equivalent in London where they reckon it costs £32.85 to have a few drinks, go to a club and get a kebab after a cab home.

They must be dreaming. I bought three drinks in a London hotel this week that cost me the best part of 30 quid. After that it was a case of walking everywhere, ditching plans to go to a nightclub and borrowing money off a homeless guy to get a bag of crisps for my dinner.

Bristol by contrast only costs £12.16 which means if you live in London you're better off getting the bus down to Bristol for a night out.

In the money, out the door...

YET another survey this week asked folk if they would leave their partners after a lottery or pools win.

The people of Manchester, Belfast, Sheffield and Edinburgh were relatively loyal, with fewer than one in 10 saying they'd split.

The Welsh were less romantic, with 17% of those surveyed in Cardiff saying the first thing they'd buy with the winnings would be a suitcase for the wife or husband.

But dear old Glasgow came top, with a whopping 23% saying they'd keep the money for themselves and turf out their better halves.

Special mention must go to the Orkney Islands, where 0% said they'd leave their wives if they became millionaires.

"How could I leave my wife?" said one man. "She's my sister for God's sake!"

Game for a laugh

ONCE again misguided do-gooders have been saying how evil video games are.

Apparently if you play them online they destroy your life, turn you into a junkie and, if the games are violent, make you go out and murder people when you pop out for a pint of milk.

It's all rubbish of course. Video games have NO effect on you as a person. I have been playing Super Mario Brothers for 10 years and I'm still a lousy plumber.

A BIT OF ARMLESS FUN, HEATHER

I WAS filming in London this week and thought I'd tell you this now in case it doesn't make it on screen.

I was recording the round-up of the tabloid year for a Christmas edition of What The Papers Say on BBC2. The idea was that we'd record it in London Zoo and if possible use the animals as relevant backdrops for the stories I'd be reminiscing about.

So when we spoke about Kate and Pete we had some dirty warthogs in the background.

For tales of fighting we'd have tigers. The George Michael bit we shot in front of pink flamingos. You get the idea.

So we went into the monkey house. And there were these gorgeous tiny red-faced monkeys jumping about. One of them came towards me and looked adorable, but in a slightly sad way. Then I realised why. He only had one arm.

The director and I turned to each other and both suggested. "Shall we do the Heather Mills bit with this fella?"

TOM CRUISE has bought a £2.5million six-bedroom cottage in Sussex. Now that doesn't sound big for a man of Tom's stature.

Then again, I'm sure it also looks enormous to a man of Tom's stature.

Katie and Tom cut honeymoon short

WIND OF CHANGE:
Wreckage in the Philippines

CRUISE FLEES
AS 400 DIE IN TYPHOON HELL

by PAUL MALLEY

NEWLYWEDS Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes fled their honeymoon yesterday amid fears a 140mph typhoon was about to sweep in.

The couple and their daughter Suri flew home from the Maldives on a private jet as the terror storm moved their way.

Typhoon Durian was sweeping west towards the Indian Ocean islands where the stars were on a luxury yacht.

The Red Cross said mudslides in the Philippines caused by the typhoon had left 134 people dead, but that figure was certain to top 400 because at least double that number were still missing.

Villages south-east of Manila were worst hit.

Bleak

Tom, 44, and Katie, 27, were on Arctic P - which boasts swanky bars and a helipad - after getting married last month.

News of the typhoon was the final straw and they headed for the Maldives' Malé International Airport.

Tom, Katie and seven-month-old Suri looked relaxed as they arrived.

A source close to the Hollywood pair said: "Storms are a regular feature in the Maldives, but a typhoon is a far more terrifying proposition."

"The forecast looked bleak anyway with thunderstorms predicted. But it's better to be safe than sorry."

"Tom will take Katie on a second honeymoon to make up for it."

Durian is the fourth typhoon to hit the Philippines in three months.
